"Giving back and helping children overcome life's challenges are a core part of our culture at Hasbro and has been since our first day of business," said Brian Goldner, president and CEO of Hasbro, Inc. "Thanks to the hard work and dedication of Hasbro's employees worldwide, we are able to support innovative programs and organizations that give us the opportunity to make a difference for millions of children worldwide."

The $23.7 million in overall support includes financial contributions totaling $9.2 million given to non-profit organizations worldwide through grants made by the Hasbro Children's Fund. Toys and games valued at $14.5 million were donated through the Gift of Play donation program. Hasbro employees also gave of their time and talents, volunteering over 10,000 hours as part of the Team Hasbro employee volunteer program. Employees are given four hours of paid time off each month to volunteer with organizations that benefit children.

"Our philanthropic programs are built on Hasbro's deep understanding of children and are designed to have a meaningful impact on the lives of children across the globe," said Karen Davis, vice president of Community Relations, Hasbro, Inc. "While our contributions often focus on creating impact for children in need, Hasbro's founding support of generationOn in 2010 underscores our belief in the power of service. We recognize that empowering kids to make their mark on the world through service impacts the lives of children in all circumstances."
